Project Description

According to the Bank's website, the proposed knowledge support technical assistance (TA) will enhance evidence-based policy formulations for private sector development and export promotion, capacity building for economic modeling, and support for the knowledge hub to accelerate sustainable economic reforms. The TA will prepare analytical studies and briefs focusing on innovative technology and new businesses for policy formulations, including e-commerce. For capacity building, the TA will provide training for applying complex and/or advanced analytical techniques such as Computable General Equilibrium models, guiding policy formulation. The TA will identify reputable academic institutions, think tanks, and research centers as a national knowledge hub for the last sub-component. The TA will connect knowledge hubs to international think tanks like Central Asia Regional Economic Cooperation Institute and Asian Development Bank Institute and support conferences and knowledge dissemination activities
