Project Description

According to the Bank's website, the proposed program will improve the resilience of the Cook Islands, the Federated States of Micronesia (FSM), the Republic of the Marshall Islands (RMI), and Tuvalu to disasters triggered by natural hazards and health emergencies. It supports reforms to strengthen climate and disaster risk management (DRM), including health emergency preparedness.

The program is the fifth phase of the Pacific Disaster Resilience Program (PDRP), initially approved in December 2017. It comprises loans and grants under the contingent disaster financing (CDF) option under the policy-based lending (PBL) modality, with a post-program partnership framework (P3F) to ensure the continuation of reforms between PDRP phases.

Early Warning System Project Analysis

Risks to program implementation are related to possible external shocks and capacity constraints of government agencies. These will be managed partially through TA support for the capacity building of government counterparts

ACCESS TO INFORMATION

You can submit an information request for project information at: <https://www.adb.org/forms/request-information-form>

ADB has a two-stage appeals process for requesters who believe that ADB has denied their request for information in violation of its Access to Information Policy. You can learn more about filing an appeal at: <https://www.adb.org/site/disclosure/appeals>

ACCOUNTABILITY MECHANISM OF ADB

The Accountability Mechanism is an independent complaint mechanism and fact-finding body for people who believe they are likely to be, or have been, adversely affected by an Asian Development Bank-financed project. If you submit a complaint to the Accountability Mechanism, they may investigate to assess whether the Asian Development Bank is following its own policies and procedures for preventing harm to people or the environment. You can learn more about the Accountability Mechanism and how to file a complaint at: <http://www.adb.org/site/accountability-mechanism/main>.
