Project Description

As stated by the ADB, the Asian Development Bank (ADB) has identified BANPU, one of the largest energy companies in Thailand, as a reputable player with a firm commitment to transitioning from conventional energy-based businesses to cleaner energy businesses.

ADB's corporate loan to BANPU will finance two subprojects: (i) the financing and/or refinancing of up to 1,500 electric tuktuks (e-tuktuks) and associated charging stations to be used for the provision of micro-transit services in Bangkok, Thailand; the operation of affordable and environment-friendly e-tuktuks will help curb congestion and air pollution from the transport sector; and (ii) a 1.3-gigawatt-hour (GWh) expansion of a lithium-ion battery manufacturing facility in Jiangsu, PRC to be used primarily for electric mobility (e-mobility) applications worldwide.

Through the project, ADB will contribute to the integration of advanced electric vehicle (EV) manufacturing capabilities, the scaling up of the EV ecosystem in Asia, and the smooth transition of the auto industry from fossil fuel-powered vehicles to EVs. ADB's financing will support BANPU's plan to accelerate its transition to more green and sustainable businesses.
