Project Description

According to the Bank's website, the technical assistance (TA) will support a study and capacity building on planning and design of comprehensive urban rehabilitation and retrofitting, as a new primary mode for urbanization in the People's Republic of China (PRC), as opposed to previous urbanization through greenfield expansion. To overcome the challenges of carbon-intensive urban patterns developed since the 1980s, which constitute most urban areas in the PRC, retrofitting is critical for successful climate action. The TA will develop technical and process guidelines for the country, support pilot cities with specific framework for urban area planning and design proposals. The objective is to make cities low-carbon, climate-resilient, compact and walkable, and follow transit-oriented development and 15-minute city principles where one can walk, cycle or use public transportation from home to work, to shops, services and open spaces.

ACCESS TO INFORMATION

You can submit an information request for project information at: <https://www.adb.org/forms/request-information-form>

ADB has a two-stage appeals process for requesters who believe that ADB has denied their request for information in violation of its Access to Information Policy. You can learn more about filing an appeal at: <https://www.adb.org/site/disclosure/appeals>

ACCOUNTABILITY MECHANISM OF ADB

The Accountability Mechanism is an independent complaint mechanism and fact-finding body for people who believe they are likely to be, or have been, adversely affected by an Asian Development Bank-financed project. If you submit a complaint to the Accountability Mechanism, they may investigate to assess whether the Asian Development Bank is following its own policies and procedures for preventing harm to people or the environment. You can learn more about the Accountability Mechanism and how to file a complaint at: <http://www.adb.org/site/accountability-mechanism/main>.
