Project Description

According to the bank's website, the "technical assistance (TA) cluster, Promoting a Just Energy Transition in the Infrastructure Sectors in Asia and the Pacific, aims to support 10 developing member countries (DMCs) of the Asian Development Bank (ADB) in addressing three persistent challenges to their climate-resilient energy transition goals: (i) fragmented policies and weak coordination mechanisms, which hinder the integration of workforce readiness into transition planning and implementation; (ii) limited technology adoption and innovation barriers, which have resulted into the inadequate adoption of renewable, smart grid, and digital solutions (e.g., Industry 4.0 smart technologies); and (iii) skills and workforce readiness gaps, with women, youth, low-income workers, and those in informal employment most at risk".

ACCESS TO INFORMATION

You can submit an information request for project information at: <https://www.adb.org/forms/request-information-form>

ADB has a two-stage appeals process for requesters who believe that ADB has denied their request for information in violation of its Access to Information Policy. You can learn more about filing an appeal at: <https://www.adb.org/site/disclosure/appeals>

ACCOUNTABILITY MECHANISM OF ADB

The Accountability Mechanism is an independent complaint mechanism and fact-finding body for people who believe they are likely to be, or have been, adversely affected by an Asian Development Bank-financed project. If you submit a complaint to the Accountability Mechanism, they may investigate to assess whether the Asian Development Bank is following its own policies and procedures for preventing harm to people or the environment. You can learn more about the Accountability Mechanism and how to file a complaint at: <http://www.adb.org/site/accountability-mechanism/main>.
