Early Warning System Project Analysis

Projects involving investments in commercial developments are generally screened as Category B projects under DFC's environmental and social guidelines because impacts are site-specific and readily mitigated. In addition to typical impacts from construction activities, the primary environmental and social issues associated with the Project include the need for life and fire safety measures and a robust environmental and social management system to ensure the Project is developed, implemented, and managed in accordance with the IFC's 2012 Performance Standards and industry-specific best practices.

The Project site is not located in or near any protected area or sensitive ecosystem and adverse impacts on biodiversity are not anticipated. No indigenous communities or cultural heritage have been identified in the Project areas, and the Borrower represents that the site was purchased more than ten years ago on a willing seller/willing buyer basis.
