Project Description

According to the IDB Invest, the proposed financing consists of a corporate loan to Universidad Peruana Cayetano Heredia (UPCH) to support the construction of a state-of-the-art medical training and simulation complex and to upgrade its existing infrastructure. This project will allow UPCH to accommodate more students and maintain its high-quality education. By training additional health professionals, the university will address the current shortage in the sector and improve the overall quality of human resources in healthcare. This initiative aligns with the key objectives of the Sustainable Health Agenda 2018-2030, endorsed by the Pan American Health Organization.
