Project Description

According to the IDB Invest, the proposed financing consists of an Accounts Receivable Purchase Facility (the "Facility") for Sugal Chile Limitada ("Sugal Chile" or the "Company"), under which IDB Invest will purchase a portfolio of eligible receivables. Each eligible receivable originates from the sale oftomato seedings, fertilizers,crop protection products, and other agricultural inputs required for land preparation and tomato cultivation to farmers (the "Agribusiness Account Receivables").

The Company is the Chilean subsidiary of Sugal Group, a leading global producer of tomato paste. The Company maintains a network of approximately 300 small and medium-sized tomato growers that supply tomatoes used as raw material in its processing operations. Through its Agribusiness Account Receivablesprogram, Sugal Chile provides financing for key agricultural inputs required for tomato cultivation, complemented by technical assistance and agronomic support throughout the growing cycle.

The Facility is expected to enhance access to finance for small and medium-sized farmers, strengthen the resilience of the Company's agricultural supply chain, and promote more sustainable agricultural practices in Chile.
