Project Description

Gia Lai Electricity JSC (“GEC” or “the Company”), founded in 1989, is one of the Vietnam’s largest private-sector independent small hydroelectric power producers. GEC owns and operates 15 existing hydro power projects (“HPPs”) totaling 84MW in installed capacity. The majority of GEC’s portfolio is small hydro power projects, ranging from 0.3MW to 16MW. It has around 278 staff.

GEC’s business model mainly consists of the development and acquisition of small HPPs, wind and solar projects. While GEC’s ownership varies from project to project, it usually assumes an active leading role in design, construction, and operation depending on the project stage.

The International Finance Corporation (IFC) – the private sector investment arm of the World Bank Group – is considering an equity investment in GEC to support renewable energy development in Vietnam.

Investment Description

- International Finance Corporation (IFC)

GEC is 87 % controlled by Thanh Thanh Cong Group (“TTC” or “the Sponsor”), a Vietnamese conglomerate founded by Mr. Dang Van Thanh in 1979, through various intermediate companies. The remaining 13% are held by around 310 individual shareholders.

TTC is Vietnam’s largest private sugar manufacturer. TTC also has 79 MW of biomass power plant portfolio owned by its various sugar business units (and to which GEC provides technical assistance and O&M services). Mr. Thanh was also the founder and Chairman for 20 years of Sacombank, one of the largest commercial banks in Vietnam and an IFC investee bank between 2002 and 2008. Mr. Thanh currently does not hold any shares in Sacombank.
