Project Description

Suminter India Organics Private Limited (“Suminter” or the “Company”), established in 2004, is engaged in sourcing, processing and exporting of certified organic products from India. IFC's investment will help the Company expand its procurement and processing operations across the states of Madhya Pradesh, Rajasthan, Odisha, Maharashtra and Karnataka (the “Project”) at an approximate cost of up to $ 25 million. The proposed IFC investment would be used for funding additional working capital needs for growth for the next few years and capital expenditure for the expansion of its existing processing facilities in Madhya Pradesh .

People Affected By This Project

Project-level impacts: (1) Stakeholder impacts: An additional 14,000 farmers in the low-income states of India will benefit from the project by gaining an access to the market and learning better farming techniques, thus, resulting in improvement in incomes (through higher yields and better quality output). (2) Value addition and employment: The project will source from certified organic farms and the products from these farms typically fetch better realisations than conventional products. The project will also generate direct and indirect employment across various parts of the supply chain such as storage and transportation, particularly in the frontier, low income regions of India.

Market-level impacts: (3) Inclusiveness: As certified organic products typically sell at a premium to conventional products, the farmers including those in the frontier regions would have an opportunity to enhance their incomes. Without such a project, the traditional farmers in low income states might not have been able to participate in the global organic products market.
