According to the bank's website, the PT Karian Water Services (KWS) "has been awarded a 34-year Public-Private Partnership (PPP) concession by the Government of Indonesia to develop and operate the 4,600L/s capacity Karian Water Treatment Plant (“WTP”) and approximately 20.2 km of transmission pipeline, situated in urban and peri-urban areas of South Tangerang City, Banten Province, Indonesia". The project seeks to assist "municipalities across Greater Jakarta to improve reliable access to safe drinking water for approximately 2 million people, reducing reliance on ground water extraction as a source of domestic and industrial water, and mitigate land subsidence in one of the world’s fastest sinking cities. The construction of the project will be undertaken through a single EPC contract. Works for the WTP are scheduled to commence in May 2023 and for the transmission pipeline in August 2023. Total project construction time is expected to be 30 months. The transmission pipeline will be built on existing rights of way (RoW), and construction will have limited and temporary impacts."
