Private Actors Description

As stated by the IFC, Vitas became a Lebanese microfinance service company in 2003 and in 2007 it became registered with the Central Bank of Lebanon. In 2012, Vitas became part of Vitas Group network, an international microfinance institution operating in multiple countries in the region. Vitas provide loans directly to its clients to support individuals and small businesses in aim to fostering long-term development. IFC started its business relationship with Vitas in 2010.

Vitas is 51% owned by CHF Development Finance International (wholly owned by Global Communities), a US-incorporated non-profit organization, and 49% owned by Saradar Bank, a Lebanon-incorporated bank.

Al Majmoua has been a major player in the Lebanese microfinance sector. It started its operations in 1997 to promote sustainable development by improving the economic and social conditions of low-income individuals, especially micro-entrepreneurs and women. Al Majmoua is an autonomous NGO operating solely in Lebanon. IFC started its business relationship with Al Majmoua in 2014.
