Project Description

This project is part of IFC Green Bond Technical Assistance Program or the GB-TAP, a multi-donor funded technical assistance program that aims to create markets for green bonds in the emerging markets by addressing a key market barrier that currently exist between investors, mostly in developed markets, and issuers in developing countries, the latter of which often suffer from a lack of financing for their transition to the low carbon economy. Under this project, IFC creates green bond-related global public goods through training, initiatives to enhance quality of information disclosure from green bond issuers to investors and broader communication activities to share knowledge, promote green bonds and disseminate the Green Bond Principles.

This project has 4 components:

- Component 1 - Training: to create, disseminate and provide green bond training programs to issuer financial institutions active in the emerging markets and, potentially, other key stakeholders;
- Component 2 - Green Bond Principles Dissemination: to promote and foster good standards of green bonds in line with the Green Bond Principles;
- Component 3 - Enhancing Issuer Reporting: to improve quality of information disclosure from green bond issuers to investors; and
- Component 4 - Knowledge Sharing: to organize a series of knowledge sharing events and to develop research and case studies.

People Affected By This Project

This project will create global public goods to stimulate the supply of green bonds issued by financial institutions active in the emerging markets. The green bond proceeds will be used to finance green projects and, thus, contribute to the transition of these countries to the lowcarbon economy
