Project Description

The three-year project (2019/20-2022/23) will focus on Increasing farmer access to improved inputs introduction of new Farmer financing and contracting solutions improving the productivity of 15,000 smallholder farmers through agronomic training building the business management capacity of malt barley aggregators

gender focused interventions market impact: contributing to a process by which Ethiopian malt barley production meets the market demand at prices equal or lower than the imported malt barley from Europe (malt barley comparable in quality & price).

People Affected By This Project

The objective of the project is to improve the quality and quantity of smallholder-based malt barley production. The productivity of an estimated 15,000 smallholder farmers will be improved through agronomic training and the distribution of high yielding seed varieties and other improved inputs. A program of assessments and training will build the business management capacity of this malt barley aggregators. The project should result in an additional annual production of 40 000 metric tonns of malt barley for both food uses and further processing
