Project Description

According to the IFC, the Project aims to prepare the ground for a possible investment project focused on the supply of water to the municipalities in the fast-growing outskirts of Antananarivo, which are currently underserved. More specifically, this initial assessment is to include: i) a technical review, including a high level environmental and social assessment, ii) a regulatory and legal review; and, iii), a preliminary financial evaluation of the possible investment project.

People Affected By This Project

The end goal of the Project is to assess whether it is possible to leverage the private sector to secure safe and reliable water supply to 20 municipalities in the Greater Antananarivo. The expected outcomes of the present Upstream engagement, which is a high-level assessment of the viability of the Project, are a robust understanding of the key regulatory, financial, technical and institutional challenges, coupled with proposed solutions to unlock them.
