Project Description

The objective of the project is to reduce stunting among children under five in Djibouti. There are four components to the project:

1. High-impact health and nutrition services to reduce stunting. This component focuses on the delivery of services and interventions that address stunting at both the facility and community levels. This component includes two subcomponents:
 - i. strengthening of health and nutrition services at the facility level; prevention and management of stunting and wasting at the community level.
2. Strengthening multi-sectoral interventions for stunting reduction. This component will focus on creating an enabling environment for strengthening multi-sectoral interventions that are critical for reduction of stunting. This component includes three subcomponents:
 - i. using multi-sectoral platforms for the prevention and management of stunting;
 - ii. addressing stunting in relevant policies and strategies; and
 - iii. multi-sectoral capacity building.
3. The third component is the strengthening coordination, project management and monitoring and evaluation. This component includes two subcomponents:
 - i. institutional strengthening for coordination, project management and M&E, and strengthening the use of information systems for enhanced M&E capacity.
4. Finally, the fourth component is the contingent emergency response component.
