Second Additional Financing to Tunisia Emergency Food Security Response Project

Project Description

According to the Bank's website, the objective of this project is to (a) ensure, in the short-term, the supply of (i) agricultural inputs for farmers to secure the next cropping seasons and for continued dairy production, and (ii) wheat for uninterrupted access to bread and other grain products for poor and vulnerable households; and (b) strengthen Tunisia's resilience to food crises by laying the ground for reforms of the grain value chain.

Components:

Emergency support to farmers

Emergency purchase of wheat for food security

Improving resilience to food security shocks and project management

Early Warning System Project Analysis

The environmental risk rating for the second Additional Financing is currently considered 'Substantial' due to various factors. Key environmental risks are linked to the project activities under Component 2, which involves the purchase and temporary storage of wheat in government silos at designated ports. While the project is not categorized as high-risk and is not situated in environmentally sensitive sites, thus reducing the potential for extensive harm, it does involve activities that could lead to adverse environmental impacts. These impacts, which are mostly temporary, predictable, and reversible, include air emissions (like gaseous pesticide residuals and emissions from backup generators), organic dust, noise pollution, and the generation of solid, liquid, and hazardous wastes, notably from pesticide use.
