Early Warning System Project Analysis

The Environmental and Social Risks are Moderate. The Environmental risk are rated Low. The project does not involve any activities that could generate significant and irreversible environmental and social impacts. No significant environmental risk has been identified, except risk related to the occupational health and safety (OHS) of the census agents during the field work, mainly their road safety. The Social risks are rated moderate. For the AF, those risks are mainly: 1) community health and safety, including gender-based violence, as big numbers of enumerators will be crossing the country interacting with each other and with the local populations; 2) conflict with the local communities, who may not be aware of the census survey activities, due to lack of trust in the enumerators or due to poor behaviors from the enumerators; 3) not knowing or respecting cultural backgrounds of the different areas that will be visited to conduct the survey; 4) grievances not resolved; and 5) poor labor and working conditions. Census workers involved in the AF activities may be exposed to discrimination, inequalities and unfairness, sexual exploitation and abuse and sexual harassment, lack of security, physical and moral harm or conflicts, and/or some degree of occupational health and safety (OHS) risks that include road accidents.
