Early Warning System Project Analysis

Environmental and social risks are rated as Moderate. The risks associated with the construction or renovation of ‘smart’ courts in select locations, including equipment and facilities are generally low, temporary and easily managed with the application of environmental, health and safety (EHS) mitigation measures. Some of the project impacts are related to (i) traffic management during the construction phase, (ii) disposal and management of waste/spoil during the construction phase, (iii) occupational health and safety of workers, (iv) nuisances related to air and noise emissions from construction activities, (v) potential e-waste generation during the operation phase, and (vi) community health and safety.

The social risks are assessed to be moderate. All constructions and renovations are expected to be done on either existing structure or government-owned plots; therefore, land acquisition is not anticipated. However, activities involve institutional capacity building and change management to address current gaps in access, efficiency and transparency delivering justice services.
