Project Description

According to the world bank disclosure statement, the Uganda Health Services Transformation Program (UHSTP) is a proposed US$300 million, six-year operation, for which Program-for Results (PforR) is the primary instrument. Of the proposed IDA financing for this operation, US$275 million will be for the PforR, and US$25 million for the Investment Project Financing (IPF) Component. The operation responds to a set of binding constraints: per capita health spending at one-third of the Universal Health Coverage benchmark, only 34 percent of approved health workforce positions filled, 86 percent of level IV health facilities (HCIVs) failing to meet minimum spatial standards, and a structural shift toward non-communicable diseases that the current system is not equipped to manage.The Program will contribute to implementation of Uganda PHC Enhancement Program, which in turn is part of the Ministry of Health's overall strategic plan to improve the health and wellbeing of Ugandans through the following strategic five strategic objectives described above. While the overall strategic plan will also heavily focus on higher levels of care, this Program will focus on the PHC aspects and linkages to selected referral/higher level services and will therefore only cover a slice of the overall program costed at UGX 16,938.99 billion over five years.
