Project Description

As stated by the AfDB, the Integrated Livestock Value Chain Development Project in Burkina Faso (PDCVIE-BF) is designed to help add value to livestock production by developing and integrating meat product value chains.

PDCVIE-BF implementation will help to:

- (i) increase the added value of the livestock meat (cattle and small ruminants), pork and poultry sectors;
- (ii) promote food security;
- (iii) increase economic competitiveness by adding value to animal resources;
- (iv) create jobs and thereby combat poverty; and
- (v) build the resilience of agro-pastoralists and agro-pastoral systems to climate change.

The project is designed as an ecosystem based on a value chain approach in which stakeholders strengthen links, become more professional by specialising around the various links in the value chains and industrial units, and establish frameworks for consultation. The model will involve the private sector, stock breeders/cooperatives, public institutions, and research/innovation, and will adopt the TAAT approach promoted by the Bank.

The project is structured around three (3) components including two (2) operational components and one (1) component for the management and implementation of project. The components are:

- (i) Increase productivity and production in target herds;
- (ii) promote standard processing of targeted meat products and their access to markets; and
- (iii) Project coordination and management.

Project activities include the construction of a slaughterhouse and meat processing plant in the administrative regions of Hauts-Bassins, Cascades, Boucle du Mouhoun, and Sud-Ouest. The project also aims to support crops for animal feed, and technical support to livestock and poultry farmers. As stated by the AfDB, the number of direct project beneficiaries is estimated at 30,000 value chain actors.

Project documents mention the "Technologies for African Agricultural Transformation - Savannahs" (TAAT-S) programme. "This initiative promotes an approach in which public intervention in member countries works in conjunction with the private sector to facilitate the introduction of multiple factors (adapted seeds, agricultural machinery, pesticides, favourable environment, etc.) needed to create the conditions for the development of commercial production hubs within an integrated maize/soya-livestock (mainly poultry) agricultural value chain."
